Re: Coreshorts

I am an Orthopaedic surgeon with 35 years experience in the treatment and assessment of various orthopaedic conditions. A special interest of mine has been manual musculoskeletal testing and the non surgical treatment of low back and pelvic conditions. Over the past 4 years I have focused on the treatment of ligamentous laxities with prolotherapy which has been particularly helpful in resolving non surgical pelvic instabilities.

I have found the compression and "X" design of Coreshorts to be extremely beneficial in controlling pelvic alignment due to ligament laxity in my patients. Coreshorts improve stability and function for activities of daily living and work related tasks and I continue to recommend them as part of a recovery and rehabilitation process for many of my clients.

Sincerely,

R Sweeting
